SATTERFIELD & PONTIKES CONSTRUCTION WINS AWARDS FOR OUTSTANDING PROJECTS IN SAN ANTONIO

SAN ANTONIO - September 10, 2010 – Satterfield & Pontikes Construction, Inc. (S&P) garnered five awards in the recent Texas Construction Best of 2010 competition that recognizes commercial construction and design excellence for projects in Texas and Oklahoma. San Antonio was well represented, with S&P projects winning awards for outstanding construction of the Primary Health Clinic at Fort Sam Houston and Cibolo Green Elementary School in North East Independent School District.

The BRAC Primary Health Clinic was recognized for Excellence in Health Care. The $37.0 million, 132,000-square-foot LEED Silver facility will provide inpatient, outpatient and specialty healthcare services.

Cibolo Green Elementary School was recognized for Excellence in K-12 Education. The new $27.3 million school is North East ISD's first 'green' campus and it is one of the first LEED schools in San Antonio. The 122,756-square-foot facility is a groundbreaking achievement in building materials sustainability, wise use of natural resources, and energy efficiency.

In addition, Satterfield & Pontikes Construction was selected for three other awards for outstanding construction:

- NASA JSC LEED Office Facility for Transition – Judges Awards, most exceptional project of all 180 Best of 2010 entries
- NASA JSC LEED Office Facility for Transition – Best in Category, Best Green Building
- Texas A&M Health Professions Education Building – Excellence in Higher Education/Research

“We are very pleased to receive this prestigious recognition,” said George A. Pontikes, Jr., President/CEO of S&P. “It is acknowledgement of outstanding performances by talented and skilled S&P teams and further demonstrates our commitment to delivering exceptional results for our customers.”
