SATTERFIELD & PONTIKES PROJECTS IN SAN ANTONIO RECEIVE AWARDS FOR EXCELLENCE IN CONSTRUCTION

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS (Oct. 14, 2010) – Satterfield & Pontikes Construction, Inc. (S&P) won the top awards in two categories in the 2010 Associated Builders and Contractors, Inc. (ABC) South Texas Chapter “Excellence in Construction” competition. The Eagle awards, signifying construction’s highest honor, were presented to S&P for outstanding construction on two of its San Antonio projects. By winning the local chapter awards, each project is eligible for the national competition.

The new Primary Health Clinic built by S&P at Fort Sam Houston won the top award in the Healthcare $25-$100 Million category. The 132,000-square-foot clinic is a registered LEED Silver facility that will provide inpatient, outpatient and specialty healthcare services.

As part of Fort Sam Houston’s network of medical services, the Primary Health Clinic will relieve the considerable patient load from the post’s existing medical facilities. The facility will also help to alleviate the additional workload resulting from relocation of thousands of active duty soldiers and their family members to the San Antonio area.

S&P’s renovation of Fort Sam Houston’s Building 2791 also earned the Eagle award for the Historical Renovation $10-$100 Million category. Constructed more than 70 years ago, historic Building 2791 has long served as a critical piece of the post’s housing facilities. Building 2791 required a complete renovation of three floors for barracks occupancy and a basement renovation for the medical battalion administration.

Winners were revealed at the ABC awards banquet held on October 12 at the JW Marriott Hill Country Resort in San Antonio. The awards recognize challenging and innovative construction projects that were completed in the South Texas area within the past year.
